Develop Their Talents... Art Class for Youngsters

Attention all mothers! Are you hiding a potential Picasso or Rembrandt in your home?

This potentially world-famous painter could be disguised as a young boy or girl spending a carefree summer, playing around the house in a pair of dirty jeans or a ruffy dress.

Right now, the Torrance Recreation Department is giving art classes, providing a good opportunity to develop hidden talent or just to provide the fun and excitement of painting pictures.

Youngsters, between the ages of 6 and 16, attend classes taught by Miss Momi Gillett of Manhattan Beach.

Divided into two classes—one for the younger students and the other for the teenagers—the group meets twice weekly.

And at the old City Hall on Cravens Ave., Tuesday and Thursday mornings, the paint brushes skim over the heavy paper leaving colorful designs ranging from portraits to sea shells.

The youngsters are taught form and color as well as good design, according to Miss Gillett who also teaches art in her home.

Using pastels, charcoal and water colors, the children find this medium a great way of expressing themselves—and who knows—perhaps they have a great talent heretofore undiscovered.

The Recreation Department is starting a second session, July 30 to Aug. 15, with the classes meeting Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Registration for youngsters between the ages of 6 and 16 can be made at the Recreation Department at the new Torrance City Hall.
